HELPFUL AIRBED TIPS

INFLATION

Please review our inflation and deflation instructions thoroughly before using your mattress. It may be necessary to add a small amount of air before you sleep on the mattress. Do not sit or lay on the bed while the pump is running. Do not over inflate your mattress.

STRETCHING

Due to the elasticity of the airbed material, the bed may feel as though it loses some air during the first few inflations. It may be necessary to add air until the bed is firm to the touch. Also note that due to stretching, it may take a few inflations to reach the advertised dimensions of the bed.

CHILDREN & PETS

Children and pets can damage an airbed (jumping, scratching, etc.). It is advised to be careful and cautious when children or pets are around your airbed. WARNING: INFANTS AND CHILDREN UNDER 3 YEARS OLD SHOULD NEVER BE PLACED ON OR SLEEP ON YOUR AIRBED DUE TO SUFFOCATION HAZARDS. Please see the included instruction manual for a full list of warnings and hazards.

BED LOCATION

In carpeted rooms, carpet tacks may be located close to your walls and can be hard to detect (since you usually do not walk that close to the wall). Please be careful when inflating or using your bed near walls. It is not recommended to move your mattress while inflated.

COLD WEATHER

Please inflate and operate your airbed at room temperature. Please allow your product to warm to room temperature if it was stored in a cold location or was outside from delivery. Doing so can help prevent cracks or tears in the bed material.

REPAIRING MATTRESS

Please refer to our directions in your included patch kit for repair of your mattress. If for any reason you are having trouble repairing your mattress, please contact customer service for assistance.

SAFETY

Before using your new mattress, please read all instructions and warnings.

Our business thrives on word of mouth and positive reviews from customers like you. If you are satisfied with your purchase of our products, please write a positive review on the retailer's website where you purchased your item. If for any reason you are not satisfied or if you have any questions please contact customer service so we can help you.
